

On Thursday, October 18 Grade 5 students across School District No. 67 will be participating in a full-day Leadership Conference “Authentically You: Creating a Culture and Community of Care and Kindness”.

Students will listen to a keynote presentation, actively participate in three different morning workshops, and bookend the event with a service learning practice with the intention of looking outwards to serving the broader community.

It is with great hopes and deep intentions that this continues to ignite the rich conversation within classroom environments (and beyond) about the opportunities that lie within the space of leadership and the magnitude of wonder that opens when children are continued to be supported and encouraged to embrace their authentic self.

Supporting these workshops will be a variety of reputable community members, confident high school student leaders from the three schools in the District, and amazing educators. The event is scheduled to begin at Naramata Elementary School at 9:30A.M. and will conclude at 2:00P.M.

The conference has been planned with great intention, and could not run without the support of the educators, School District, PAC’s, community members, and families. Along with participating in an incredible conference, children will receive a special “kindness” t-shirt and a “gratitude” focused journal.
